Battery Monitoring Systems Market 2017

Battery monitoring systems comprise monitoring and control units, sensors, and software that are used to maintain and monitor battery health under optimal condition to make sure that it is performing to its full potential. The numerous advantages that batteries offer over other similar energy storage technologies and technological developments in different battery technologies over the years have increased the adoption of batteries for energy storage used in emergency and grid-scale applications. The use of these cells in highly demanding conditions where they regularly operate outside the quantified state leads to quicker degradation of the cell, thereby upsurging the chances of failure.

The analysts forecast the global battery monitoring systems market to grow at a CAGR of 22.95% during the period 2017-2021.
