Sheffield Based 'Cornucopia Radio' release the first episode of their new podcast Sitcom 'Pod to Pluto' written by Peter Richard Adams

SHEFFIELD, SOUTH YORKSHIRE, UNITED KINGDOM, February 9, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- "Pod To Pluto" is a new SciFi Comedy Podcast from 'Cornucopia Radio' (the Sheffield based; spoken word internet radio station), in which 'UK Space Engineer' Jemima Belafonte is forced to undertake a five year trip to Pluto by her company, with only an insane 'Pod' computer for companionship (trapped together in a tiny engineering pod). The task? To go turn off a lightbulb that might have been left on.

The show started broadcasting on the 8th of February.

It is written by Peter Richard Adams and stars Laura England as Jemima and Wayne Russell as Pod.

The show is available to stream on the 'Cornucopia Radio' website and can be subscribed to as a podcast. Each episode also has a unique 'Space Vidfeed' message available; broadcast by Jemima from deep space.

New episodes are released every three weeks and are available on the show webpage:
