

IT Governance launches South African website to meet growing demand across Southern Africa

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA, August 5, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- IT Governance is today launching an African website, www.itgovernancesa.co.za, offering a unique, one-stop shop for books, standards, tools, and distance learning courses for IT governance, risk management, compliance and information security.

Alan Calder, Chief Executive of IT Governance, says: 'The website is our first in Africa. We are excited to be bringing a comprehensive range of resources to the African marketplace. We stock IT-related books from every leading publisher, including ISACA, TSO (for UK Cabinet Office titles), and, of course, IT Governance Publishing. Many of our books are available in a wide range of formats including: softcover, eBook, and multi-user licence.'

The use of a warehouse in Cape Town will help orders to be fulfilled quickly and cost-effectively across Southern Africa. The website offers a secure online checkout where customers have a choice of South African rand or US dollar currency with which to make payment with.

www.itgovernancesa.co.za will serve a wide-range of customers including students, organisations and a number of South African Government Public Service departments. The Public Service departments of the South African Government are due to adopt COBIT 5 as part of the Corporate Governance of Information and Communication Technology Policy Framework as instructed by the Department of Public Service and Administration.

IT Governance is renowned for its excellent customer sales and service team and it is beyond doubt that www.itgovernancesa.co.za will offer all visitors the same superior experience.
