FileTrail's Information Intelligence Solution Selected by Fortune 1000 Company in Global Mining

SAN JOSE, CA, June 10, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The global mining corporation, serving five continents with tens of thousands of employees, recognizes FileTrail's unmatched technology, ease of use and fast deployment as the key to their records management success.

FileTrail, the global leader in information intelligence, today announced they have been selected as the enterprise solution for a leading global mining corporation serving five continents with tens of thousands of employees. Providing their expertise in global records management, FileTrail is the only technology solution with integration to Microsoft SharePoint that can align the Enterprise-level corporation's entire records process out of the box. The organization required an efficient data import solution to migrate data from third party systems. The configurability of FileTrail provides a proven migration path, and ease and reliability when upgrading, resulting in both time and resource savings.

"Through a competitive process, we found that the configurability made custom programing unnecessary," said a Global Vice President at the global mining organization. "Configuration, coupled with a quick global deployment and native integration into SharePoint, proved FileTrail is the best and only solution for us - ensuring shorter time to delivery and lowering the cost of implementation."

FileTrail provides a complete end-to-end physical and electronic records management solution using its unique Best Practices Engine - delivering more than 20 years of expertise in the unified records management space. The Best Practices Engine is built into the software and automatically integrates expert methodology, lowering internal IT overhead, and requiring less reliance on contract developers and outside consultants.

FileTrail builds on three pillars of records management: Access and Visibility, Compliance and Control, and Experience and Results. This allows FileTrail to quickly deploy a records management program that is scalable with any size organization in any industry. Hundreds of companies worldwide utilize this practice, resulting in FileTrail customers finding information faster and thereby instantly boost productivity.
