

Al's Auto Salvage Offers St. Louis Auto Parts for Late Model Cars

Specializing in trucks of the 80s, 90s, and 21st Century, Al's Auto Salvage Is St. Louis' First Choice for Reclaimed Auto Parts

ST LOUIS, MO, USA, October 22, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In an unassuming red building in St. Louis, at 1610 Lucas and Hunt Road, Al's Auto Salvage offers St. Louis' best selection of auto parts from late-model vehicles. If there is a part that is needed that cannot be found anywhere else, there is an excellent chance that it can be found at Al's Auto Salvage, where the inventory is only exceeded by the dedication to customer service.

The knowledgeable staff at Al's Auto Salvage knows cars, trucks, SUVs, and other motor vehicles – foreign and domestic alike. They know what parts are compatible with what cars, and they are ready, willing, and able to help even neophyte mechanics find the part they need at prices they will like.

The inventory at Al's Auto Salvage is legendary in the St. Louis area, and the only thing constant about it is that it will continue to expand, as the company acquires parts and full cars daily. Al's Auto Salvage derives a lot of its St. Louis auto parts from wrecked cars, for which the company readily pays top dollar. Even in a car that is totaled, there likely are a lot of parts that are useful for those with sufficient auto mechanical skills.

With an exhaustive selection of auto glass in St. Louis, as well as motors and transmissions that are tested and ready to go, Al's Auto Salvage offers almost anything needed for automobile restoration, including but not limited to full-on engine rebuilds.

Al's Auto Salvage is open on Saturdays and welcomes wholesale accounts, though anyone with an eye for a bargain and an interest in finding a hard-to-find part is welcome to stop by.

Al's Auto Salvage in St. Louis specializes in American and foreign cars and light trucks from the '80s and '90s. The parts lot is convenient to the entire St. Louis metro area.
