Adhesives & Sealants help to hold two surfaces together. Adhesives are designed to bind and grip two surfaces at a cellular level. Sealants are polymers and are designed to close any opening or gap between surfaces to prevent any penetration. Sealants are available in a paste-like consistency when applied fills the gap which is otherwise difficult to seal with adhesives or any other material. Sealants are applied for assembling of portable electronic devices. Adhesives are often used as a bonding agent for assembling or manufacturing of electronic devices.

Adhesives bind at a cellular level and Sealants have a tight molecular structure. Sealants have high flexibility and low strength whereas Adhesives bind two surfaces strongly. Adhesives have high strength and durability. Sealants have higher elongation capacity than Adhesives. Sealants help to seal joints or assemblies and should be resistant to the environment to retain the bond. Sealants are formulated with an elastomer to provide flexibility and elongation. To preserve the bonding Sealants need to have a low shrinkage feature. Sealants keep the moisture in or out of the components.

Adhesives are widely used for the purpose to avoid stitching and getting the wound closed quickly. They lower the risk of infection or bleeding. Sealants help to protect devices from harmful leakage. The demand for Adhesives & Sealants is growing in the electronics manufacturing unit.
