Jeffrey Friedland

Attending a Hemp Boot Camp arms attendees with the latest tools and information regarding regulations, cultivars, cultivation practices, harvesting, and the market for hemp fiber, seeds, and CBD; with a strong emphasis on the business and financial aspects of growing hemp.

Since hemp was first legalized in 2018, hemp and hemp-derived CBD, have become two of America’s fastest-growing new industries. The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) and industry leaders forecast that hemp will become a major American agricultural crop. The market research firm, Grand View Research, Inc. projects that the global hemp market will reach $10.6 billion in annual sales by 2025. By comparison, in 2018 the U.S. soybean market generated revenues of $23 billion and the U.S. corn market $51 billion.

Who should attend a Hemp Boot Camp:

Farmers growing other crops who would like to learn about cultivating hemp.

Farmers currently growing hemp interested in insights as to "what's working," and "what's not working" in the hemp industry.

Growers interested in the economics of cultivating hemp.

Growers interested in maximizing their revenues by selling hemp seeds, hemp seed oil, and flower or CBD oil.

Entrepreneurs seeking early-to market advantages in the new and fast-growing hemp and CBD industries.

Investors seeking to better understand the new investment opportunities of hemp and CBD.

Initial 2020 Hemp Boot Camps are scheduled in the following cities:

Saturday, April 4, 2019 - Springfield, Illinois

"It was illegal to grow hemp in the United States for over 80 years (since 1937). The 2018 Farm Bill changed all that, and now would-be hemp leaders have an amazing opportunity to master the financial aspects of the market and learn the regulatory ins and outs of the industry. Our Hemp Boot Camps will enable early-to-market participants to obtain the tools and knowledge to succeed in what is becoming a major American agricultural crop."
