

Mobile Deployable Communications 2021 to Discuss the Importance of Allied Interoperability in Communications Technology

The conference will discuss international interoperability efforts, such as the Federated Mission Network and the Tactical Edge Networking programme.

LONDON, ENGLAND, UNITED KINGDOM, November 17, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As near-peer adversaries have been developing ever more complex electronic warfare technologies and carrying out exercises to jam allied communications, militaries must develop stronger and more resilient technology in order to withstand these challenges.

With this in mind, Mobile Deployable Communications 2021, taking place online as a virtual event on 27th – 28th January, will highlight the importance of interoperability by discussing international efforts, such as the Federated Mission Network and the Tactical Edge Networking programme.

"We must work to ensure interoperability with allies and integration of the best technological developments from industry," said Brigadier General Bento Soares, Director CIS, Portuguese Army, who will be speaking at the event.

Attendance for military and government personnel will be free, and it's just £499 for commercial organisations. Register at: <http://www.mobiledeployable.com/pr5>

The poster features a blue sky background with a white drone flying over a desert landscape. In the foreground, several soldiers in camouflage uniforms are positioned around a piece of equipment. The text "SMI GROUP'S 14TH ANNUAL" is at the top in black, followed by "MOBILE DEPLOYABLE COMMUNICATIONS" in large white letters. A brown box on the right contains the dates "27-28 Jan 2021" and "Virtual Event". At the bottom, the website "www.mobiledeployable.com" is displayed in white on a black background, with the event title "Mobile Deployable Communications 2021 - VIRTUAL" below it.
