"The first step is to determine what the pandemic is currently doing in your community," Iglesia Ni Cristo leaders said. "If the pandemic is in full force, and many new infections are occurring, it's better to continue with at-home services, no matter the complications, for now."

As much as we enjoy our community socializes before and after church services, we ask that everyone forego this action for the time being,"

However, the church stated that it is now possible to attend in-person services if the virus is under control in your community. Certain safety precautions can be used to keep yourself and others safe. A mask must be worn at all times, and it must cover the nose and mouth. Additionally, members of the church should sit at least 6 feet away from those who do not live in the same household. This may require moving church services into a larger building or outdoors.

"All attendees should wash their hands upon entering the church and bring their own hand-sanitizer for sanitizing after touching surfaces throughout the church," Iglesia Ni Cristo leaders said. "It's essential that anyone with symptoms of COVID-19 not attend church, even if they haven't been tested, are awaiting test results, or the test results have come back negative."

Iglesia Ni Cristo churches around the country and around the globe have increased the number of accessible sinks and sanitizing supplies. They ask that everybody use these new stations and supplies as often as possible.

Church leaders explained that they look forward to a time when the community can enjoy social gatherings again, but participation in the above actions now can help these gatherings return sooner. The Iglesia Ni Cristo church has trained all staff and clergy to take all necessary sanitation and safety measures, and they ask that the church community follow all provided guidelines, so in-person services can continue.
