The memoir is structured into short stories that deal with various aspects of the author's life ranging from his foreign adventures, choice of music, and his daring accounts of flying a small plane. “A fireman ran to me from his truck that had stopped next to the airplane, shook my hand, and congratulated me on a good landing. ‘Felicidades, capitán.’ And then we saw the flame shooting out from under the left wing. The sparks from scraping the runway had ignited the spilled fuel. His fire truck shot CO2 foam at its large cannon on top and extinguished the fire.”
