The International Alliance of Wound Care Scholarship Foundation® & Healiant Training Solutions™ partner to bring hundreds of wound care scholarships to the Nurse Community.

Traditionally, there have been unnecessary barriers in the way of clinicians who wish to elevate their wound care knowledge and become board certified. The partnership between International Alliance of Wound Care Scholarship Foundation® (IAWCSF®) and Healiant Training Solutions™ was formed to overcome those obstacles by empowering licensed healthcare providers through training and accredited clinical certifications.

For the first time, wound care product companies will have the ability to support this extraordinary community of care providers by donating scholarships to the IAWCSF® so that eligible clinicians may take advantage of best-in-class wound care education and certification at no expense. Through this program, the IAWCSF® will receive and award two scholarships for every one that is donated by a sponsoring wound care product partner.

“Up to two hundred licensed healthcare providers from all over the country, all walks of life, all nurse types will have the opportunity to be wound care trained and board certified at no cost,” explains Josh Heuchan of Healiant Training Solutions. “Top notch wound care training has

This is the first ever initiative of this scale, where a foundation, a training provider and the manufacturing community came together to do something truly impactful for the industry.”

historically been out of reach, financially speaking, for individuals who are passionate about wound care, but have not had the discretionary funds to pay expensive training fees. It will also benefit the wound care product companies, as they will get to honor the nurses on the front line with a very generous gift of knowledge, training, and education. Ultimately, it will benefit the patient, as a more clinically capable caregiver will deliver better care at the bedside.”

The International Alliance of Wound Care Scholarship Foundation® was created to support the community across the wound healing continuum by supporting advanced training and certification thereby increasing opportunities to health care professionals who are looking to serve this population. One hundred percent (100%) of IAWCSF's time is dedicated to advancing healthcare clinicians in wound care. “We appreciate the opportunity to partner with Healiant and the wound care product community to provide financial aid in the form of scholarships to these well-deserving individuals,” said Angela Weathersby, Ph.D., Executive Director.

“This is an unprecedented opportunity for clinicians to gain access to training leading to certifications without the barrier of cost,” said Kathy Carlson of Healiant. “This is the first ever initiative of this or any scale, where a foundation, a training provider and the manufacturing community came together to do something truly impactful for the industry. By joining together, we can deliver meaningful outcomes to the wound care community and patients for years to come.”
