Ingenuity, consistency, and growth do seem to go hand-in-hand. I am eager to see what new ideas or practices will be born out of these submissions, as the world learns and grows from these giants.”

Thomas Brandt, Spokesperson of IAA

The TITAN Business Awards' primary goal is to acknowledge the achievements of entrepreneurs and organizations globally. The competition does not differentiate between small or big players in the market, and honors excellence impartially on the level playing field they have created. Only those who qualify can become honorary TITANs.

The competition was organized and hosted by the International Awards Associate (IAA) and opened submission to entrepreneurs, SMEs, and large organizations alike. The chance to participate was offered equally to all available industry in the market, and it did not discriminate between private or public, and for-profit or non-profit entities.

"Despite this being the second season for this competitive year, we received a staggering number of entries, all of which demonstrated remarkable qualities of excellence," Thomas Brandt, spokesperson of IAA, remarked. "It is particularly motivating to see so many parties still actively engaging in excellent practices in their businesses. It really does come through clearly from their submissions."

2023 TITAN Business Awards Call For Entries

As seasoned professionals took the seats of jurors in the competition, exercising strict standards and impartiality in the judging process became possible. The jury was tasked with identifying exemplary entries and awarding them appropriately. TITAN aims to elevate standards of excellence and ultimately drive the business sector forward through this.

The Jury & Evaluation Process

TITAN placed importance on having a diverse perspective in their judging process. As a result, as many as 27 jurors from 15 countries were brought on to judge the entries. The lineup of amazing jurors consisted of individuals such as Santiago Villegas (1903 Public Relations), Marie O'Riordan (EML), Joseph D'Souza (ProNavigator), Belinda Jane Dolan (Quantum Wellness), Roland Bagen (Tata Consultancy Services), Prof. Dr. M. Amr Sadik (Quodrat), Xavier Moreano Calero (Netlife), and Pronob Das (PMCC CORPORATION).

In their pursuit of impartiality, the competition enforced blind judging. Under this method of assessment, jurors could only assess an entry entirely on its individual merits, without being compared side-by-side with a different entry. Also, strict objective standards built upon contemporary practices were used as benchmarks during assessments.
