The Legacy of Maguchi Group

For 125 years, Maguchi Group has grown alongside Osaka Port as a leading logistics company. Historically, Osaka was known as “Japan’s Kitchen,” where goods from across the nation were gathered and redistributed. The expertise cultivated in this commercial hub continues to shape Maguchi’s diverse modern businesses.

After World War II, Maguchi contributed to port reconstruction and established Japan’s first in-house vocational training school in the logistics industry, underscoring its commitment to human resource development. In recent years, the company has expanded beyond logistics into construction, healthcare, and nursing care. The opening of KONJAKUSO Osaka Tempozan marks another action in its journey of innovation.

Preserving Heritage for the Future

Maguchi Group upholds the vision of creating “a society where everyone can pursue well-being,” practicing sustainable management in its daily operations. This philosophy resonates with the mission of the KONJAKUSO brand: to revive historic buildings as luxury accommodations, preserving cultural heritage while adding new value.
