

Clars Auctions Announces Important Watches & Holiday Jewelry Auction on November 20th

OAKLAND, CA, UNITED STATES, October 30, 2025

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Clars Auctions is pleased to announce its upcoming Important Watches & Holiday Jewelry Auction, to be held on Thursday, November 20, 2025. This sale features an exceptional array of fine wristwatches and holiday-ready jewelry, curated to appeal to collectors, enthusiasts, and those seeking the perfect seasonal gift.

This auction will feature a curated selection of timepieces from internationally recognized watchmakers, each known for their legacy of innovation and craftsmanship. Highlights include the Rolex Daytona stainless steel wristwatch, estimated at $30,000–$50,000, a model associated with motorsports and worn by Paul Newman. Also on offer is a Rolex Submariner Red Dial stainless steel wristwatch, estimated at $20,000–$30,000, a vintage variation of the Submariner series, one of the most widely known dive watches in horological history. A classic Rolex Submariner stainless steel wristwatch, valued at $7,000–$10,000, will also be presented. Founded in 1905, Rolex introduced several technical advances, including the first waterproof wristwatch and the self-winding Perpetual rotor.

Also featured is a Frank Muller 'King' Conquistador stainless steel wristwatch, No. 456/1000, expected to achieve between $10,000–$20,000. Franck Muller, sometimes referred to by collectors as the "Master of Complications," is recognized for complex mechanical movements and distinctive design. From Omega, a brand with a longstanding history in precision timekeeping and space exploration, comes a Speedmaster stainless steel Olympic model wristwatch, estimated at $3,000–$5,000. The Speedmaster was notably the first watch worn on the moon, and it continues to be a significant model in the history of chronograph design.

The sale also includes a Bulgari Parentesi 18k gold and stainless steel dress watch, estimated at $6,000–$8,000. Established in the late 19th century, Bulgari is known for blending classical Roman design motifs with contemporary style. From Baume & Mercier, one of Switzerland's longstanding watchmaking houses dating back to 1830, a diamond and 18k gold dress watch will be offered at $4,000–$6,000. The brand is recognized for producing watches with a focus on refined and minimalist design.

The auction will also include a Breitling Avenger 43 stainless steel wristwatch, estimated at $3,000–$5,000. Breitling, established in 1884, has been associated with aviation and is known for manufacturing chronographs with technical functionality. A Bulova Accutron Astronaut 14k gold and stainless steel wristwatch, circa 1970, is offered at $4,500–$6,500. The Accutron, introduced in the 1960s, was one of the earliest fully electronic watches, utilizing a tuning fork movement that marked a significant development in timekeeping technology. Another timepiece in the auction is the Bedat & Co. Lady No. 3 18k gold dress watch, with an estimate of $10,000–$20,000.

The auction will also feature a selection of fine jewelry. Among the lots is a diamond and 18k gold collar necklace, estimated at $10,000–$20,000, and a lavender jade and 14k gold necklace, estimated at $7,000–$10,000. Jewelry from Tiffany & Company includes a diamond and 18k gold earrings and necklace set, valued at $7,000–$10,000, and a pair of 1999 enamel and 18k gold fish cufflinks, estimated at $2,000–$3,000. Additional pieces include a pair of diamond and 14k white gold earrings and a diamond and 14k white gold pendant, each estimated between $8,000–$12,000.

“This auction is a celebration of craftsmanship, design, and timeless luxury,” said Campbell Unruh, GIA G.G. Specialist, Fine Jewelry & Watches at Clars. “Whether you’re a seasoned collector, a first-time buyer, or searching for the perfect holiday gift, this sale offers an extraordinary opportunity to own a piece of horological or jewelry history.”

These featured pieces represent only a portion of what will be offered in the auction. The full catalog will include a broad range of fine watches and jewelry across various styles, makers, and price points—offering something for every collector and buyer.
