

Turkish Army and QinetiQ join Military Flight Training 2014

SMi's Military Flight Training conference takes place on the 22 – 23 June 2014, London, UK

LONDON, UK, July 22, 2014

/EINPresswire.com/ -- SMi are delighted to announce two new speakers have joined the leading speaker panel at the 3rd annual Military Flight Training conference.

Don't miss the chance to hear from Colonel Omer Boztas (Ret), Technology, Research and Strategy Consultant/Ex Director from the Turkish Army who will present on: Understanding the Adoption Processes of FSTD for Generating Knowledge-Based Strategies Regarding Innovative Efforts in the Sector.

In addition don't miss the unique opportunity to hear from Helen Dudfield, Chief of Training and Fraser Bruce, Systems Engineer from QinetiQ will be discussing:

Transforming Training in the Digital Age – Future Training Visions: 2020

- QinetiQ have successfully led the Distributed Synthetic Air Land Training (DSALT) programme for the MOD for five years. DSALT uses specialist synthetic training facilities to meet the needs of UK Land and Air forces operating in hostile environments. This paper will provide an insight into the challenges facing training in this digital age, the return to contingent operations and move to Future Force 2020;
- They will contend that training content and experience will need to meet the aspirations of the truly digital native alongside digital immigrants in manned and unmanned blends of live, constructive and virtual worlds;
- To meet these needs, we will discuss our understanding of human characteristics and
