The John Herzog Collection Featuring Rare U.S. & Worldwide Stocks, Bonds and Autographs at auction on Saturday, October 24th in New York City

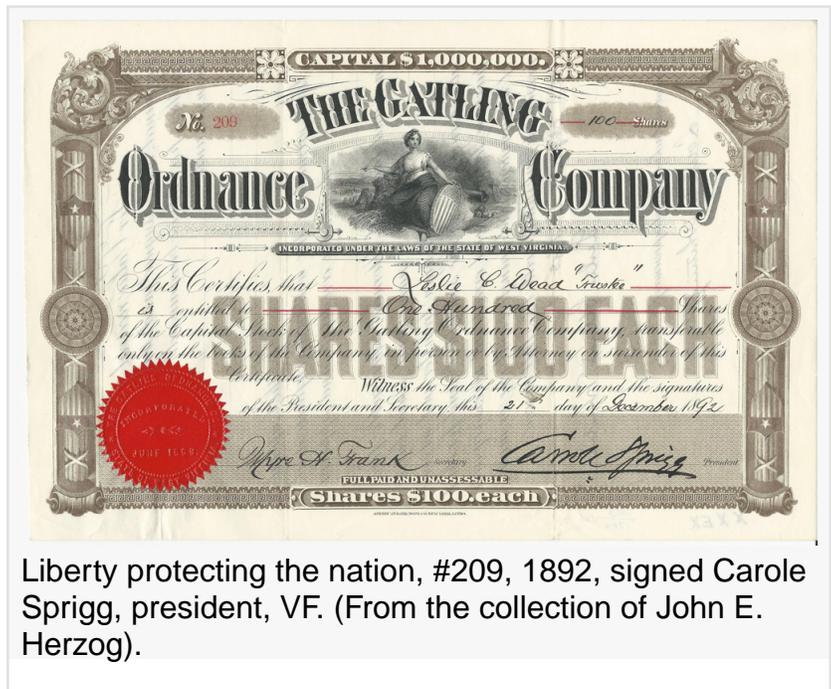

NEW YORK, NEW YORK, U.S.A., October 21, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- More than 1,200 lots of U.S. and worldwide banknotes, coins, scripophily, Liberty loans, Federal bonds, Confederate bonds and banknotes and security printing ephemera will be sold at public auction on two non-consecutive days – Oct. 24th in New York City and Oct. 29th in Fort Lee, New Jersey – by Archives International Auctions, based in Fort Lee.

Session I is slated for Saturday, Oct.

24th, at the Museum of American Finance located at 48 Wall Street in lower Manhattan. It will be held in conjunction with the Fifth Annual Wall Street Coin, Currency & Collectibles Show, scheduled Thursday thru Saturday, Oct. 22-24. Session II, takes place on Thursday, Oct. 29, at Archives International Auctions' offices, at 1580 Lemoine Avenue (Suite 7) in Fort Lee, NJ.

“We are excited to offer the first portion of the John E. Herzog Collection of rare and exciting Scripophily (the collecting of stocks and bonds) as well as many outstanding collections that include U.S. Railroad bonds, Confederate bonds, U.S. and Worldwide banknotes, Confederate banknotes, coins, autographs and security printing ephemera,” said Dr. Robert Schwartz, President of Archives International Auctions. “We anticipate another exciting auction and have the privilege of holding the first session at the historic and beautiful main gallery of the Museum of American Finance located at 48 Wall Street which used to be the old Bank of New York Building. Even with the numerous rarities in the auction, collectors of every level and budget are certain to find that elusive treasure for their collections.”

Start times for both sessions will be 10:30 a.m. Eastern time. For those unable to attend in person, there will be live online bidding on their website at www.ArchivesInternational.com as well as a live gallery, absentee and telephone bidding.
