

A Book About Tragedy of Doomed Love Unveiled

DEXTER, MO, UNITED STATES, October 9, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Forbidden is the second book in a series of seven by author Betty Lowrey. Continuing with characters from the first book, Forgiven; Ellen, Anne, Bitty and Harriet prepare for Hutson's annual Ball where intriguing insight, the good and bad is given to their personal lives.

Animosity and misunderstanding reveals the relationship between Harriet and the new girl on the block, Marigold. Dressed in their finest, the ladies attend the ball learn the pitfalls of having allowed one's self to fall in love. Bitty's Chief of Police is wearing a new woman on his arm, Anne's ex shows up drunk to embarrass her again in view of the Cape's most prominent citizens.

Ellen's faith is the key to Anne, Bitty and Harriet's future. They are observing Ellen's profound serenity, her calm in the midst of chaos and feel drawn to understand the workings of her faith, they begin to know from whence it comes, putting behind the Forbidden things of life.

When their world crumbles, the ladies trust a higher power, receiving the Holy Spirit, which brings a new depth to their lives helping them cope with those constant situations that used to weigh them down. When hearts are breaking, they still have hope and reassurance.

Through the pages of Forbidden, Ellen's unwavering faith is a light of hope to weary hearts.

About the Author:

Betty Lowrey draws from an educational background that dealt with literature and the love of words and life. She began writing first person articles of interest for a newspaper and branched into hosting a weekly column that featured area writers and poets. She studied with the late author and illustrator David Melton and has been published in numerous magazines and newspapers. While writing is an important outlet, she is also an artist, a life group leader, and has an interest in an area agricultural endeavor.
