

In GA's 4th Congressional Race Incumbent's Donors Switch Support to Challenger Juan Parks

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, UNITED STATES, May 21, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Atlanta, GA – Candidate Juan Parks has a clear message for Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi and DNC Chairman Perez, “Georgia 4 will be neglected no more! Democratic leadership should prepare for a transition after the Democratic primary on Tuesday in Georgia,” said Parks. Losing the support of major donors and constituencies are clear signs that the incumbent is in danger of losing to newcomer Juan Parks. In addition to securing support from the incumbent’s loyal voters and major donors, Parks is mobilizing a new cadre of voters.

Georgia’s 4th Congressional District (CD) includes Rockdale County as well as sections of Gwinnett, DeKalb, and Newton counties. Georgia 4 is a moderately diverse constituency; both economically and ethnically. Candidate Juan Parks has been shaking hands with constituents and talking directly to eligible voters. He continues to build personal relationships and actively lays out his vision for the district while droves of constituents label the incumbent as detached, absent and disconnected.

Candidate Parks continues to pick up the support of notable residents across the district. At a recent community meeting on Friday, May 18, 2018, Mr. Rahim Charania, the Chief Executive Officer of American Fueling Systems (AFS), the second largest producer of compressed natural gas (CNG) in Georgia, operator of the largest public alternative fueling facility in the state and owner of the $117 million-dollar investment by Three Ring Studios located in the district gave candidate Parks his personal endorsement. Mr. Charania said, "I'm comfortable saying with absolute confidence that Juan Parks is the man to lead DeKalb County...I can't wait to see the impact he has on the shared community."

Additionally, Parks has total support from the Newton county’s economic development community and an endorsement from the American Warrior Society. Parks is a veteran, an educator, a committed father and an advocate for the people. He has focused on increasing smart economic development in DeKalb County, ending sex trafficking along the I-20 corridor and dealing with gun violence through responsible gun legislation. While speaking with constituents he said, "the people of Congressional District 4 deserve a representative in Congress that is connected to the pulse of the community and I will be their voice for change now and in the future."
