As part of the lead-up to the company's platinum anniversary — which will officially commence in 2019 — starting in the next few weeks DigitalPhone.io's Founder and CEO Nicky Smith will be publishing a series of articles that reflect on the company's fascinating story over the years, and its evolution from a small startup in 2000 to what is now an established and rapidly-growing enterprise with a large roster of customers, expanding workforce, and national footprint.

Smith will also highlight the enormous sense of pride that he and his team feels about the fact that DigitalPhone.io was born in Greensboro, NC, and that the company's roots in the area run extremely deep — and always will.

“In many ways, the dynamic growth that we've experienced over the years has been mirrored by the of the technology-led evolution in the Greensboro business community,” commented Smith. “While so many jobs are disappearing or being sent to other countries, we're proud to continue creating skilled, high-quality, permanent and well-paying positions right here in Greensboro. We feel a sense of civic and social responsibility to demonstrate that ‘made in the USA’ still means something vitally important to us, and to our customers.”

Added Smith: “As part of our anniversary celebration, we also plan on highlighting the pivotal role that the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce has played over the years, particularly with their incredible support for small and mid-sized firms, and their overall leadership in economic development. We are fortunate to have such an active and effective Chamber of Commerce, led by a group of dedicated professionals who never cease their efforts to cultivate and champion Greensboro's progressive, dynamic, and highly successful business environment!”
