Discounted Hotel Rates for our guests are available through Capitol Skyline Hotel with promo code: icare4autism.

Dr. Stephen Shore & Dr. Joshua Weinstein

Conference speakers include:

Acclaimed professor and educator Stephen Shore, Ed.D. Clinical Asst. Professor, R.S. Ammon School of Education at Adelphi University; Robert Naseef, Ph.D. (PA) of Alternative Choices; Founder and CEO of ICare4Autism, Joshua Weinstein, MBA, Ph.D.; policy advisor Scott Michael Robertson, Ph.D., Office of Disability Employment Policy, U.S. Department of Labor; Carol M. Schall, Ph.D. (VA) Asst. Professor School of Education, Virginia Commonwealth University, Special Education Director of Technical Assistance and the Autism Center of Excellence; as well as more speakers to be announced.

The national conference will focus on initiating an Apprenticeship Training Program for High School Students with Special Abilities across all 50 states and what better time to do it than in the month of October dedicated to National Disability Awareness month. Speakers will discuss the importance of assimilating high school students with special abilities in the workforce and together creating pathways to comprehensive apprenticeship workforce training programs for our high school students with special abilities.

We invite parents, students, educators, therapists, faculties of surrounding universities and especially organizations and institutes dedicated to serving individuals with special abilities to attend this informative conference that will be a wonderful resource and a wealth of knowledge around the topic of employment for all High School Students with Special Abilities. It is up to us to take action and make a change for the betterment and future of our High School Students with Special Abilities.

Seats are limited and available on a first come first serve basis. Be sure to register before time runs out! For more information on how to register for the conference please visit:
