The most popular among them seems to be the antibacterial formula of Biopocket handspray proven to be 99.99% capable of killing germs and is absolutely safe to use with no side effects. Unlike other products, its solution is alcohol-free and dermatologically tested to cause no skin dryness and irritation.

Not many people know that our phones are dirtier than we think. A study conducted in UK, suggested our phones exceed the acceptable total viable bacterial count level. In fact they are 18 times dirtier than the public restroom toilet flush and are most probably carrying fecal matters.

Biopocket handspray is a portable handspray to fight off germs found in your hands and on your phone. The best part of this is that Cellements developed an app dedicated to reminding you when you need to clean your phone. The app is available for download in Google Play and App Store.

“Our Pocket Concept is designed to fit into the trend of making your life easier and more fun. At the same time giving you a better health and quality of life,” said Anders Karlsson, CEO & Founder of Cellements.

Nicolas Adreasson, a US based entrepreneur and founder of multiple successful businesses partnered with Cellements® to bring the world this unique line of Bio Tech products for a healthy lifestyle. When asked about the US Cellements Launch Tour he replied: “I am beyond excited to be on this tour. These products are made with the newest revolutionizing Biotechnology processes. Conveniently packaged, same size as a credit card, they can be carried anywhere.”
