

Tapjets – Private Jet Instant Booking Platform Announces reaching its Round “A” funding goal and release of “SkyWizard”

Tapjets has reached its goal in raising the “A” round of investment and added major functionality for aircraft operators seeking to increase their margins.

HOUSTON, TEXAS, USA, June 12, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Since its formation in late 2015, Tapjets has consistently introduced innovative technologies to simplify booking of private jet charter. Today Tapjets has taken a giant leap by leveraging artificial intelligence and machine learning to fully replace quoting and selling functions that operators typically do to book their flights.

"With hundreds of thousands of flight requests being directed to private jet charter operators, we wanted to make the operators more efficient by leveraging our platform and other aircraft within the platform to win more trips", said Eugene Kesselman, CEO and Founder.

“

We want operators to spend more time in the air instead of in front of their quoting screens. Our technology handles 95% of the requests for quote instantly. That means more bookings and more revenue”

Robert Klumb, SVP Operations

SkyWizard™ is designed to complement current solutions being used by air charter companies. The requests from charter brokers, clients, and other operators are analyzed by trained artificial intelligence system designed to optimize aircraft movement across the country. The system increases aircraft utilization by 15-20% which translates to improved operational performance and margins for the operator and aircraft owners.

“We want operators to spend more time in the air instead of in front of their quoting screens” said Bob Klumb, SVP, and co-founder of Tapjets. “Our technology can handle

95% of the requests from brokers and other sources in real time. That stands for more bookings and more revenue hours flown.”

With the new functionality and additional funding, Tapjets continues to expand its “Virtual Fleet” of aircrafts that can be booked instantly on a moment’s notice.
