

Senior Military from NATO to provide updates on Maritime Systems and platforms at Maritime Information Warfare 2019

Smi Reports: Senior experts from NATO will be presenting at the 3rd Annual Maritime Information Warfare conference, in London this November

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, September 9, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In recent years, NATO has stepped up its efforts in Intelligence by creating an Assistant Secretary General position and a NATO Intelligence Division to better understand the security threats.

NATO continues to optimise its intelligence capabilities to facilitate timely and relevant support to Allied decision-making and operations. This includes improved early-warning technology and greater intelligence sharing (particularly on terrorism, hybrid, and cyber threats).

With this in mind, SMi's Maritime Information Warfare Conference taking place on the 18th- 19th November 2019 in London, will include a variety of senior military experts from NATO, where they will discuss topics and updates on Maritime Systems and Platforms as well as ways to improve Data Exploitation.

There is a final early bird discount of £100 on bookings, which will expire on the 30th September. For those who are interested in attending, register at www.maritimeinfowarfare.com/ein7

The NATO presentations include:

Captain Timothy Unrein, Operations Intelligence, NATO MARCOM will be presenting on 'Developing MARCOM's Information Warfare Doctrine and the Effect on the Landscape of Maritime Information Warfare'.

- How will this new doctrine generate greater interoperability in the realm of: C4I, ISR, Cyber Warfare, Information Exploitation
- What does this doctrine look like now and how was it developed with the best interests of NATO forces in mind
- How does MIW doctrine improve on and make specific NATO Information Operations
