Basically cosmetic dye is an essential product which is used in manufacturing of many cosmetic items. They are used to add or change color of hairs, lips, and nails. These dyes are mostly used in the cosmetic industry and provide specific color needed in many cosmetic products. Also, other applications of these dyes include toiletries and cosmetic products.

The global cosmetic dyes market is growing since the last few years and is expected to grow the future as well. The increased use of dyes in ranges of cosmetic products, such as lip products, hair color, and eye makeup, among various others is driving the market size greatly. The cost benefit offered by global cosmetic dyes in the cosmetic industries is also viewed as a prominent market driver. However, rigid regulatory policies might act as a restraining factor in the growth of the global cosmetic dyes market.
