He's also fast on the approach to an incredible 20 years of commitment as an American Red Cross volunteer.

"I'm extremely proud to have served as a volunteer staff member for the American Red Cross since 2003," reveals Valerio Pizzoferrato. Born and raised in Paris, France, Pizzoferrato credits his multicultural upbringing with his love of food, languages, travel, and art. "It's also to thank in no small part for my continued love of adventure," he adds.

Beyond his passion for adventure, food, languages, travel, and art, Pizzoferrato is similarly enthusiastic about fashion, soccer, skiing, and Formula One international auto racing.

Paris-born Pizzoferrato is a graduate of Columbia University. It's from the private Ivy League research institution in New York City that the trauma nurse and healthcare consultant holds a master's degree in human biology. He's now been employed in his current role since 2012.

Elsewhere, the Columbia graduate has, to date, lent his support to the amazing efforts of the American Red Cross for almost 19 years. "I pride myself on my ability to work with others from diverse backgrounds," says Pizzoferrato. "I also strive to lead, inspire, and be a role model in my community," he adds.

Valerio Pizzoferrato believes, he goes on to point out, in constantly pushing to be the very best at what he does. "However, it's important to remember to pause from time to time and to be grateful for my faith and the opportunities that I've had in life," remarks the healthcare consultant and trauma nurse.
