Cybersecurity has been all over the news lately and the clear message is that companies need help. A virtual Chief Information Security Officer is a security expert offering a fraction of their time to companies in need. This webinar will cover what a vCISO does as well as the current trends in cybersecurity, such as ransomware, breaches, vendor risk and how companies are responding to customers' questions about security.

Businesses interested in how to advance their own cybersecurity programs or to learn more about engaging with virtual CISOs can join the webinar through Eventbrite (https://www.eventbrite.com/e/vciso-coffee-klutch-3-experts-share-their-top-3-tips-tickets-156720020801). Please join us with your questions and be prepared to engage with the panel.

George Rosamond, CTO of ClearOPS, will be moderating these panel discussions, "in the post-SolarWinds world, closing the gap on privacy and security leaves many companies with nowhere to turn. This event puts a spotlight on vCISOs, who act as a mitigation to the challenges of this new world." Joining him are three security experts, Dr. K. from DataPoint Solutions Consulting, Ferry Haris from FeHa International Consulting and Cheri Hotman from The Hotman Group.
