Matthew Keezer notes that Assam is famous for its many different tourist attractions that can overwhelm visitors who have never experienced such a diverse and well-maintained array of natural wonders. When it comes to nature-related exhibits, Assam is home to two-thirds of our planet's one-horned rhinoceros – a creature whose appearance stretches back across the eons of time. The perfection that is associated with its nature preserves has earned Assam its number one place among the world's best wildlife sanctuaries. In addition to the rhinos, you can also observe; Royal Bengal Tigers, Gibbons, Bengal Foxes, Wild Buffalos, Swamp Deer, Sloths, Flying Squirrels, Leopards and many other examples of, rarely seen in-the-wild, animal life.

Matthew Keezer also points out that the many other features of Assam's tourist attractions include various different attractions that are suited for every member of the family as well as singles and those who are seeking a romantic getaway. There are numerous cultural offerings and modern-day attractions that include ancient temple tours as well as planetarium shows. The accommodations are most assuredly world-class and far more economical than in many other parts of the world.

Things to do in Assam

Matthew Keezer points out that this can be a surprisingly unique and diverse travel spot for those who are looking for nature-oriented activities as well as more urban tourist entertainment features:

□Guwahati Planetarium – for those who like to view the wonders of astronomy, the Guwahati Planetarium is the perfect attraction for both families and space enthusiasts. This exceptionally popular tourist attraction offers a more interactive way of viewing the wonders of outer space.
