“We’re glad to have received this recognition from CIOReviewIndia. Being one of the early adopters of the OutSystems’s low-code platform, we’ve spent a lot of time perfecting our knowledge about the technology and its associated parameters. We strive hard to make productivity gain and agility a key differentiator for our clients and OutSystems helps us achieve that”, says Rameshwar Vyas, CEO of Ranosys.

“Ranosys is where innovative ideas are turned into reality, which eventually puts our clients ahead in the league against the competition. We don’t believe in an uncertain tomorrow. Instead, we like to prepare for it,” he continued.

OutSystems enables rapid development and quick response to evolving market dynamics. Ranosys leverages these differentiating features of OutSystems and couples them with its unique customer-centric, design-driven approach in supporting global clients across their entire application development lifecycle.

Established with a humble workforce in 2008, Ranosys has built a niche for itself with the continued development of human capital and investment in relationships within the platform ecosystem. They've even established a strategic Centre of Excellence (CoE) for the purpose of encouraging research and development as well as promoting collaboration across industries. Their OutSystems Champions have strategized, delivered, built, and continuously supported mission-critical applications for renowned Indian and global enterprises. Moreover, Ranosys has also joined hands with universities to introduce low-code as a subject in the educational curriculum.
