Key Trends In The Cutlery And Hand Tools Market

Cutlery and hand tools market trends include the increasing demand for metal additive manufacturing which is growing worldwide, especially in countries such as Germany, Japan, China, and India. This is primarily due to increasing consumer demand for lightweight, faster, and fuel-efficient automobiles, which drive the demand for metal additive manufacturing. Metal additive manufacturing is a 3D printing technology used to manufacture the final product by stacking layers of material and then being polished for a seamless appearance. In 2022, according to Cybercrew, the 3D printing industry will grow at a CAGR OF 10%. Which was at $10 billion in 2019. Increased investment in metal additive manufacturing technology is further leading to process improvements, lower productions costs in allied manufacturing industries.
