The overall fixed-base operator (FBO) market in APAC is witnessing slow growth as compared to other regions such as North America and Europe, which is mainly attributed to the presence of a smaller number of business as well as private jets across the region. The fixed-base operator market is observing slight growth in the Southeast countries such as Indonesia, Singapore, and Macau. The general aviation sector in APAC is expected to rise during the forecast period, which is also demanding the fixed-base operator service provider to offers enhanced services to the traveler. Currently, there are total 72 FBOs operating in Asia Pacific countries; of these, 23 are operating in Australia and serve a business aviation fleet of ~200 aircraft. The FBOs in Hong Kong operate with ~122 business jets. Tag Aviation has expanded its footprint in Macau in 2020, and it was the very first company to officially open its office in the region. Similarly, as per the survey conducted by the Aviation International News (AIN), in 2020, MJets FBO topped the list of FBOs operating in Asia Pacific, and it ranked seventh among the world's top FBOs for the for fifth consecutive year. MJets operates in Thailand for only Private Jet Terminal and has its FBO facility at Bangkok's Don Mueang International Airport. Thus, slow but promising increase in the number of FBOs in APAC is emerging as one of the significant opportunities for the growth of the fixed-base operator market players. Furthermore, The rising demand for business and private jets, including both small and large aircraft, is one of the significant factors driving the business growth of hangaring service providers. The steady rise in air traffic has created a need for new aircraft. The OEMs are also focusing on the development of new-generation aircraft with reduced fuel consumption, large size, and low noise and carbon emissions. As a result, the demand for hangars has increased in the recent time.
