LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, November 27, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Throughout the year, Hinduism celebrates many unique and grand festivals and observances that raise the collective consciousness of humanity. One of them is Karthigai Deepam, a ten-day celebration, originated in the town of Tiruvannamalai, India, the sacred birthplace of The Supreme Pontiff of Hinduism (SPH) Bhagavan Nithyananda Paramashivam. This auspicious celebration is very significant for the 2 billion Hindu diaspora worldwide, especially for Shaivites who mainly worship Lord Paramashiva, and with the blessings of The SPH Bhagavan Nithyananda Paramashivam, Karthigai Deepam is celebrated in more than 16,000 KAILASA ecosystems across the globe.

Karthigai Deepam dates back to at least 8,000 years, making it the oldest recorded festival in history. It is the celebration of One becoming Many and merging back into Oneness.

Karthigai Deepam is celebrated to mark the appearance of Lord Shiva - the primordial God of Hinduism, the consciousness that is beyond time and space - entering into time and space as an infinite shaft of light. According to Hinduism, it is on this very day, the timeless Paramashiva decided to become many and made Himself available to many to celebrate Himself. Kartigai Deepam is when the Big Bang happened, and when time started from timelessness. According to modern science as well, all that existed before the big bang is a hot plasma similar to a shaft of flame.

Lord Shiva declares in Chandogyopanishad:

ekoham bahuśyām mahā

“Let me become many to celebrate me.”

It is a very powerful understanding which is celebrated on this day. In the morning of the Bharani Deepam, many lamps are lit from one Temple lamp to signify “one becoming many”. The individual lamps are maintained during the day and on Karthigai Deepam, in the evening, each one is brought back and merged with the Temple lamp to signify “many becoming one”.
