What are the growth prospects of the gcc dairy industry?

GCC Dairy Market

The GCC dairy market is expected to exhibit a CAGR of 6.7% during 2022-2027.

What is a gcc dairy?

Dairy products are obtained from cows, buffaloes, goats, and camels. They are a rich source of calcium, iron, zinc, protein, healthy fat, iodine, magnesium, phosphorus, potassium, and vitamins. They help improve immunity and metabolism and maintain the required nutritional content in the body. Besides this, they aid in building and maintaining strong bones and preventing hypertension, diabetes, cardiovascular diseases, and musculoskeletal disorders.

Impact of COVID-19:

We are regularly tracking the direct effect of COVID-19 on the market, along with the indirect influence of associated industries. These observations will be integrated into the report.

What are the major market drivers in the gcc dairy market?

The burgeoning food and beverage (F&B) industry and the expansion of camel breeding farms are positively influencing the demand for dairy products across the GCC region. In addition, the rising health awareness among individuals and the increasing consumption of camel milk as it has antioxidants, immunoglobulin, and high nutritional value is augmenting the market growth. Camel milk is a natural probiotic that stimulates the growth of healthy bacteria in the stomach and improves digestion. Furthermore, changing lifestyles and shifting dietary preferences of individuals are offering lucrative growth opportunities to manufacturers operating in the region. Moreover, the rising consumption of lactose-free, sugar-free, and low-fat edible products is propelling leading manufacturers to introduce vegan dairy products, which is offering a favorable market outlook.
