"I'm Doing Better" is an anthem for the underdogs; Marion Hall embraces the journey like a phoenix rising from the ashes. The upbeat song nonchalantly tackles tough topics with style and grace, leaving only crumbs for those in disbelief. Marion's sound has become an enthralling fusion of gospel, R&B, and soul, with touches of rap, rock, and dancehall. Three-time Grammy Award Winning industry veterans Gramps Morgan and Shannon Sanders (producer for India Arie and John Legend) lend their expertise, adding their special touch as producers on the project.

Minister Marion Hall continues breaking boundaries and channels her faith to find footing in showcasing her iconic voice. The international superstar rose to fame as Lady Saw and is celebrated for her many contributions to world music. This latest release is a follow-up to singles "If I Was Famous" and "Sorry to Hurt Your Feelings," which marked her return to the music industry after a period of quietude. Marion identifies as a Christian and has welcomed the ministry's role in all aspects of her life.
