Written and produced by NASRUS, “Neurotic Goddess” is a tongue-in-cheek cautionary tale about the dangers of infatuation. In other words, sometimes that which looks good to you may not necessarily be good for you. The new accompanying visual is chock full of pop-culture references that can be cleverly seen highlighted and mirrored via the artists' signature t-shirts. The video perfectly uplifts the song's playfulness and lyrics in an upbeat and creative way that speaks to any generation and fits the Halloween season and beyond.

For the past month, NASRUS has been traveling and performing "Neurotic Goddess" on morning television programs all over the country, including KTNV ABC13 Las Vegas, NV, KGUN ABC9 Tucson, AZ, WTMJ NBC4 Milwaukee, WI and WFTS ABC Action News, Ch 28 in Tampa, FL. NASRUS will be continuing their media tour throughout the month of November in the US and UK including stops and interviews scheduled in Chicago, Los Angeles, and London. "We're thrilled to share our music with the world as NASRUS," says Shawn Rivera. "This project is a testament to our passion for creating music that tells authentic stories, which will resonate with people on many different levels." Norm Adams adds, "Collaborating with Shawn has been an incredible experience. Our shared vision for NASRUS has allowed us to explore new creative horizons." As people across the country connect with the new single and visual for 'Neurotic Goddess', streaming and radio play have this new single on track and poised to make a significant impact on the dance music scene.
