E-Commerce Boosts Market Expansion

The escalating demand for online shopping stands out as a pivotal factor propelling the growth of the household furniture and kitchen cabinets market. Manufacturers now have the opportunity to showcase and sell their products on a larger platform, expanding their customer base geographically. This phenomenon contributes to the overall growth of the furniture manufacturing market.

Notably, in countries like India, e-commerce portals have played a crucial role in amplifying sales for household furniture and kitchen cabinet manufacturers, offering broader exposure to producers previously confined to specific regions.

Rise of RTA Furniture: A Global Trend

Ready-to-assemble (RTA) furniture is gaining substantial traction globally among homeowners and renters. RTA furniture, also known as Knock Down furniture, is characterized by its affordability and quick furnishing capabilities. Unlike traditional furniture, RTA furniture is not assembled by the manufacturer but is provided in parts with assembly instructions. This trend is particularly prevalent in developed countries and is gaining momentum in emerging economies like China and India. For manufacturers, RTA furniture offers efficiency by eliminating assembly time and associated costs, allowing them to focus on design and part production. Notable examples of RTA furniture include bedroom sets, dressers, computer desks, bookcases, and filing cabinets. Major players such as IKEA, a leading RTA manufacturer, have expanded their presence in response to the high demand for ready-to-assemble furniture.
