KlaymanToskes reports the firm has filed a FINRA arbitration claim (no. 23-03281) against HJ Sims on the behalf of a retired investor who is seeking to recover $100,000 in investment losses, in connection with being recommended to invest in HJ Sims' proprietary, unregistered Reg D Offerings.

According to the claim, contrary to the customer's investment objectives and best interest, HJ Sims solicited the customer to invest in its proprietary Reg D Private Placements that the firm marketed and sold to its customers, including following:

- Tuscan Isle Holdings
- Tuscan Isle Championsgate
- Madison FDG
- Vantage PT FDG

Over the last decade, HJ Sims and its financial advisors have sold 93 Reg D offerings which totaled over $2 billion in private placement bonds to its customers, many of which are now delinquent and have missed interest payments. It is alleged that HJ Sims was negligent in structuring its Reg D offerings, which were misrepresented to customers, while the company and its senior executives sought to enrich themselves through fees.
