technology company accelerating residential clean energy adoption across the United States, announced the appointment of notable economist Lawrence H. Summers to its Advisory Board.

Summers brings deep expertise to Palmetto, having served as Secretary of the Treasury under President Bill Clinton and Director of the National Economic Council under President Barack Obama. His extensive understanding of economic policy and commitment to sustainable development align firmly with Palmetto's work to democratize access to renewable energy sources.

Palmetto is at the forefront of clean technology innovations with a best-in-class platform model that deploys clean energy solutions at scale, ensuring widespread access and impact. Summers' appointment comes at a moment when the country's energy infrastructure must transition to renewable energy sources for climate change mitigation.

"Understanding the broader economic landscape in the clean technology space is critical, perhaps more than many other sectors. We operate within an environment directly and indirectly impacted by monetary and fiscal policy, consumer sentiment, energy rates, foreign policy, and overall health of the economy," said Chris Kemper, Founder, CEO and Chairman of Palmetto. "We are thrilled to bring Larry's perspective to our team as we continue to navigate the markets and ensure that we are building for a long-term, successful Company."

"We are living in an era of rising energy prices and accelerating climate change," said Summers. "Decarbonization is not only vital for environmental sustainability but also for stabilizing global long-term economic growth. I am excited to join Palmetto in its mission and contribute to advancing the future of clean energy in the United States."

Summers joins an impressive group of advisors with expertise spanning diverse industries, including policy, DEI, fintech, software, and industry operations. Palmetto's Advisory Board includes Neil Chatterjee, Former Commissioner of the US Federal Energy Regulatory Commission; Catherine McKenna, Former Minister of Environment and Climate Change of Canada; Monica Williams, The Equity Project; Nirav Tolia, Nextdoor; Mike Lamach, Former Chairman of Trane Technologies; and Molly Graham, former Facebook executive.
