About Ericka Nicole Malone

Ericka Nicole Malone is an award-winning filmmaker, writer, and businesswoman, who is building her own brand of entertainment in Hollywood, by amplifying female voices and creating films that showcase the Black experience while integrating characters that speak to all.

At the top of 2023, Ericka negotiated an exclusive multi-year licensing deal with Hulu for her award-winning film, Remember Me: The Mahalia Jackson Story, and won an NAACP Image Award for Outstanding Breakthrough Creative (Motion Picture). Early in her career she understood the obstacles faced by female filmmakers, and women of color, so she chose to bet on herself and founded Ericka Nicole Malone Entertainment. This allowed her to tap into her business savvy and combine it with her love for writing, resulting in success on the theatrical stage and in film.

Ericka Nicole Malone Entertainment is dedicated to impacting the film & television industry by shattering glass ceilings for creatives of color and disrupting the norm through grants, internships, panels, and special events.
