contemporary aesthetics.

Advocacy and Awareness: Learn about issues facing indigenous communities, including cultural preservation and sustainability.

Entertainment and Artistry: Experience a visually captivating showcase complemented by music, dance, and storytelling.

The First Peoples Fashion Show will include an opening reception, designer booths, and opportunities to purchase unique designs and jewelry directly from artisans.

A Vision Rooted in Community and Culture

Spearheaded by Executive Director Sandi Siegel, a Denver fashion scene veteran and advocate for Indigenous culture, the First Peoples Fashion Show was inspired by her experiences in the Sonoran Desert and the inaugural First Peoples Festival in Estes Park. “This show is a celebration of creativity, resilience, and the rich heritage of indigenous communities. It’s an opportunity to honor their stories while providing a platform for their artistry to shine,” says Siegel.

Join us in the heart of the Rocky Mountains to celebrate the beauty and diversity of Indigenous culture and fashion.

Seating is limited and advanced ticket purchase is recommended.
