

Next Day Access Columbia, SC: New Franchise Location

Next Day Access is elated to announce the grand opening of Next Day Access Columbia, SC. Elizabeth and Jared Yoder own and operate this location.

COLUMBIA, SC, UNITED STATES, May 19, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Next Day Access, a leading provider of mobility and accessibility solutions, is elated to announce the grand opening of Next Day Access Columbia, SC. Elizabeth and Jared Yoder own and operate this location.

The Yoders are no strangers to business ownership. Elizabeth, who has a doctorate in vocal pedagogy and is a classically trained opera singer, spent years working in her own business with highly trained singers, voice professionals, and piano players in New York City. Through her many years on stage and in studios, she shared her love of people and seeing her students grow. Her husband, Jared, shared his love of people by working as a Registered Nurse for the last twenty-five years, including working in the cardiac ICU and nursing management. He completed his Master's in Business Administration and Master of Science in Healthcare Leadership through Cornell University while working as an administrator at New York Presbyterian Hospital. He has always had the entrepreneurial bug, and now the timing is right.

When they began researching franchises, Next Day Access was a great solution to combine their business ownership with their desire to help people. "We are passionate about helping others in our community, building family teams, leaving a legacy, and influencing others to be a force for good," says Elizabeth. They also look forward to involving their children to demonstrate servanthood and leadership within their communities. "We were impressed with the leadership of Next Day Access and the opportunity to help so many people," Elizabeth said. They didn't choose Next Day Access for themselves, but for their family.

The Yoders look forward to building a solid team that wants to serve with integrity and develop friendships within a network of business professionals.
