

Reimagining Mortgage Education: Next Level Opens Its Virtual Doors

*New NMLS-Approved Education Provider
Introduces Innovative Training Solutions for Mortgage Professionals*

FRANKLIN, TN, UNITED STATES, May 22, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A fresh force in mortgage education has officially entered the field. Next Level Education, a newly formed company focused on continuing education and professional development for mortgage industry professionals, has announced its launch and the debut of its official website:

www.nextleveled.com. Designed to help elevate industry standards and expand access to homeownership nationwide, the company is the vision of two seasoned mortgage experts, J.R. Huber and Debbie Gadberry, who bring over 70 years of combined industry leadership to the venture.

Huber will serve as Chief Executive Officer and President, while Gadberry steps into the role of Chief Operating Officer and Senior Vice President. Together, their mission is clear: to create a learning environment where aspiring and experienced mortgage professionals alike can thrive, grow, and ultimately help more Americans realize their dream of homeownership.

At the heart of Next Level Education is a commitment to making learning more accessible, personalized, and engaging. The firm combines the founders' decades of real-world industry experience with modern educational delivery systems to build a dynamic, tech-forward curriculum. From licensing to leadership, the company's offerings are designed to meet professionals where they are—and take them further.

The idea for Next Level Education emerged from a shared realization: that greater support and inspiration for mortgage professionals could lead to greater success for the homeowners they serve. By equipping both new entrants and industry veterans with practical tools and up-to-date knowledge, Huber and Gadberry saw the opportunity to create ripple effects across communities nationwide.

“By integrating innovative technological solutions, we believe we can transform professional development as we know it, ushering in a new era where mortgage industry training is dynamic and easily adaptable to diverse learning styles,” said Huber. “Our team is eager to begin cultivating the industry’s emerging leaders in an engaging and effective way.”

To deliver on that promise, Next Level Education utilizes the Adobe Learning Manager platform in conjunction with Adobe’s full creative suite—creating a flexible and intuitive learning experience. Whether through structured coursework or supplemental content, the company aims to foster both skill development and deeper industry understanding.

The platform supports four distinct delivery formats to accommodate various learning preferences and professional schedules:

- In-person training

- Live webinars

- Self-paced online modules

- Instructor-led virtual classes

Coursework spans a wide array of topics, from mandatory continuing education and licensing exam prep to broader professional development and personal growth. Learners also gain access to a robust library of support resources, including industry podcasts, blog content, exclusive discounts, alerts on industry changes, and licensing guidance—much of which is available for free.

“J.R. and I had a vision to make continuous education and learning more enjoyable and engaging in our industry. By leveraging our many decades of experience, we’re confident we can help both new and seasoned loan officers be successful,” said Gadberry. “Our ultimate goal is to elevate the expertise of mortgage professionals and develop a mortgage industry workforce that is qualified and capable of helping Americans achieve the dream of homeownership.”

As the demand for homeownership continues to grow, and the mortgage landscape evolves, Next Level Education aims to serve as both a training partner and a trusted guide. With a forward-thinking approach and a human touch, the company is poised to become a vital resource for mortgage professionals at all stages of their careers.
