Harmonies for Health is a concert benefitting Urban Health Partnerships, that will be held at Lakou Miami on June 7th.

"Our communities are facing real challenges and there's so much heaviness in the world right now," said Dr. Andrea Iglesias, CEO and Executive Director of Urban Health Partnerships. "Harmonies for Health is about creating a space that reminds us of the strength and resiliency of our communities while supporting the important work happening on the ground. We all deserve moments of joy, connection, and hope. Joy is an act of resilience too, and gatherings like this remind us that we're still here, still fighting, and still building something better."

Family, friends, and the community are all invited to experience a fun evening of Harmonies for Health on June 7th. More than just a night of live music, the evening promises to uplift and inspire—with storytelling, heartfelt connection, and a shared commitment to creating healthier communities for all through the work of UHP.
