to announce that it is supporting Move for Amirah for the fourth consecutive year, continuing its commitment to help survivors of human trafficking. This year, Move for Amirah has set a $100,000 goal, and the empatiX team will be getting active, spreading awareness, and raising funds to help reach that goal.

Move for Amirah encourages individuals and organizations to participate by engaging in any kind of physical movement, such as walking, running, biking, swimming, etc. to raise awareness and donations. The act of moving and pushing oneself physically represents the challenging journey that survivors face as they escape trafficking and rebuild their lives.

To show its support, empatiX members are getting outside and moving, and encouraging friends and family to do the same.

“This is a cause our team feels strongly about,” said Jessica Horkan, Co-Founder and Managing Partner at empatiX. “Human trafficking is an issue that is not talked about enough, and organizations like Amirah provide critical services to survivors. In uncertain times, we think it’s especially important to give back and be part of something meaningful, so we’re proud to participate in Move for Amirah for the fourth year in a row.”

Funds raised during Move for Amirah go directly toward providing survivors with essential needs such as safe housing, food, transportation, new identification documents, and access to recovery programs. These services are integral in helping individuals recover from the human trafficking industry and regain their independence.

empatiX has a long-standing commitment to community involvement, having worked with a variety of nonprofit organizations such as Lazarus House Ministries, The American Cancer Society, The Alzheimer's Association, Two Blind Brothers, and Fearless! Hudson Valley. It is no surprise that one of the core values at empatiX is empathy, as it continues to embody what it means to give back to the community and support those in need through its participation in Move for Amirah for the fourth consecutive year.
