BASKING RIDGE, NJ, UNITED STATES, June 26, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Viking Pest Control is proud to announce it has again been recognized as a Top Workplace by NJ.com for the fifth consecutive year. This prestigious designation highlights Viking's continued commitment to creating an exceptional workplace culture across its growing footprint.

In addition to the New Jersey honor, Viking's Pennsylvania office has been recognized for the first time as a Top Workplace by The Philadelphia Inquirer, underscoring the company's expansion of its award-winning culture throughout the region.

This recognition is based entirely on anonymous employee feedback collected through a third-party survey, which measures key elements of workplace excellence such as innovation, compensation and benefits, leadership, and work-life flexibility.

"Earning the Top Workplace designation is especially meaningful because it comes directly from our employees," said James McIntyre, President of Viking Pest Control. "Their passion and commitment make this company what it is, and we're honored to share this achievement with every team member and our customers."
