Market Dynamics

The AMR study thoroughly describes the drivers, restraints and potential opportunities for the gummy vitamins industry. According to it, increasing prevalence of dysphagia, particularly in the elderly population, is a major driver of the landscape. In addition, the pleasant taste and easy palatability of gummies have boosted their popularity among kids, hence augmenting the market development. However, the risk of dental cavities and obesity by gummy consumption due to high sugar content in them hampers the market growth.

On the contrary, product innovation and diversification is a lucrative opportunity to expand the industry and drive its growth. Vitamin gummies can be formulated as plant-based, sugar-free, and artificial flavoring-free, thereby addressing the related health concerns.
