Opening their set with the heartfelt track "The Way To You," the band greeted the audience with soaring guitar melodies and warm vocals. They kept the momentum going with "Ideal Type," a retro-inspired rock number infused with synth grooves, before showcasing their versatility through "Talking To Myself" and "Dream It," both highlighting the band's dynamic range and emotional storytelling. The performance reached its peak with a powerful cover of Queen's classic track, "Don't Stop Me Now," rearranged with Catch The Young's signature sound that had the entire crowd singing along. The band's debut single "YOUTH!!!" amplified the festival's electric atmosphere with an anthemic chorus that turned into a massive crowd sing-along. Closing the set with "The Legend," the band left the stage radiating confidence and chemistry built from relentless live performances over the past two years since their debut. Catch The Young members expressed gratitude after the show by saying, "Sharing this moment with the JUMF crowd will remain unforgettable for us."

With steady growth through university festivals, solo concerts, and street busking, Catch The Young has earned a reputation as a band that showcases notable strength in live performance with its own interactive, high-energy shows. Their back-to-back appearances at the Incheon Pentaport Rock Festival and JUMF this summer cemented their place as one of the most exciting emerging acts on Korea's festival scene. This September, Catch The Young will take the stage at Sound Planet Festival, continuing to expand their identity as a band that defines and expresses youth.
