-- Didero, a pioneering leader in AI-powered autonomous procurement solutions, will showcase its groundbreaking technology at CHAINge North America, taking place from September 9-10 in Columbus, Ohio. Formerly known as ASCM Connect, CHAINge is the premier event for supply chain professionals exploring innovative technologies and strategies for a more efficient, resilient future.

We're building autonomous procurement, using AI to centralize supplier interactions, automate workflows, and free teams to focus on strategic decisions in today's fast-changing supply chains.”

Tom Petit, CEO and Co-Founder of Didero

Didero's AI procurement agents significantly enhance procurement operations for mid-sized to large manufacturers and distributors managing complex supply chains. By seamlessly integrating with existing ERP, email, and supplier systems, Didero automates time-intensive procurement tasks like sourcing, onboarding, RFQs, PO lifecycle management, and invoice reconciliation. This powerful automation is particularly beneficial for companies transitioning away from outdated tools such as Excel spreadsheets and cumbersome email threads.

“We're building truly autonomous procurement,” said Tom Petit, CEO and Co-Founder of Didero. “We use AI to centralize supplier interactions, automate routine workflows, and liberate procurement teams to focus on strategic decisions that drive meaningful business value, especially critical in today's rapidly-changing supply chain environments.”

Attendees at CHAINge North America can visit Didero.ai's demonstration at the CHAINge Technology Showcase, where they will see firsthand how autonomous procurement can help their teams become more agile, responsive, and strategically focused, particularly amid challenges like tariffs or global supply disruptions.
