The collaboration unites one of football's most iconic players with one of the fastest-growing global sports technology brands. Together, Courtois and Betmaster aim to bridge the worlds of football, motorsport, and digital entertainment, paving the way for a bold new era that blends traditional competition with innovative digital engagement.

I believe the future of sport won't choose between digital or real — it will be both.”

Thibaut Courtois

A bold vision: from football to Formula 4

Founded in 2023, TC Racing is Courtois's personal passion project. The professional Formula 4 team competes in Spain and serves as a launchpad for young, ambitious drivers seeking a route to elite motorsport. TCR is unique in its approach: the team combines traditional racing with esports and virtual racing pathways, allowing talent to be discovered, nurtured, and developed both on real tracks and in digital arenas.

This pioneering “e2Real” model sets TCR apart. By integrating esports into its scouting and training programs, the team opens the door to new generations of drivers and fans, making motorsport more accessible, diverse, and future-focused.

Courtois, who has spent his professional football career at the pinnacle of world sport, views TC Racing as an opportunity to build something lasting off the pitch.

“Sport has always been about discipline, opportunity, and ambition,” said Courtois. “With Betmaster by our side, TC Racing gains the resources and vision to push boundaries in both motorsport and digital racing. Together, we’re building something that inspires athletes to take risks and dream big.”

What the partnership delivers

Through this partnership, TC Racing will receive crucial backing from Betmaster to:

- Expand operations and strengthen its presence in the Formula 4 circuit.
- Invest in advanced technology, ensuring that drivers and teams benefit from cutting-edge performance tools.
- Unlock new opportunities for young drivers seeking to break into elite competition.
- Grow its esports presence, reinforcing TCR’s unique position at the intersection of motorsport and digital racing.

For Betmaster, the alliance is more than a sponsorship. It represents a strategic step into motorsport, underscoring the company’s reputation as an innovator at the crossroads of sport, gaming, and fan engagement.

“Courtois is not only a world-class athlete but also a visionary,” said a Betmaster spokesperson. “By building bridges between traditional and digital sports, he is shaping the future of fan engagement and competition. This partnership reflects Betmaster’s commitment to innovation, responsibility, and creating unique experiences for fans worldwide.”

Responsible innovation at the core

Both Betmaster and TCR are united by a belief that innovation must go hand in hand with responsibility. For Betmaster, that means ensuring that sports betting and digital gaming are enjoyed within a framework of fairness, transparency, and security. For TCR, it means fostering an environment where young drivers can develop safely, ethically, and sustainably — both on the track and online.

This alignment creates a strong foundation for the partnership, enabling both organizations to inspire confidence in fans, players, and stakeholders.

Looking ahead

As the partnership unfolds, fans can expect to see new initiatives that merge the excitement of live motorsport with the accessibility of esports and digital platforms. From community activations to interactive campaigns, the collaboration is set to deliver experiences that go beyond the track and into the everyday lives of fans across the globe.

For Courtois, this new chapter represents both a challenge and an opportunity.
