By integrating AI technology, strengthening compliance measures, and providing scalable staffing solutions, we are delivering a higher standard of performance marketing.”

Edmond Pain

a leading performance marketing and technology company, today announced the expansion of its service offerings to include advanced artificial intelligence (AI)-driven solutions and compliance-focused lead generation tools. The new initiatives mark the company’s continued evolution following its recognition as one of the nation’s fastest-growing private companies, ranking No. 214 on the Inc. 5000 list.

Founded in 2016, Connecting The Dots has established itself as a trusted provider of aged data, live leads, and marketing technology solutions across the solar, mortgage, insurance, and home services industries. The company is recognized for its emphasis on TCPA compliance, data integrity, and transparent business practices, all of which remain central to its growth strategy.

The company’s latest expansion introduces a suite of AI-enabled capabilities designed to enhance marketing performance, streamline operations, and deliver measurable results. These include automated lead nurturing across multiple channels, advanced analytics for improved decision-making, and business process outsourcing (BPO) solutions that enable clients to scale operations efficiently while reducing overhead costs.

“Our clients face increasing complexity in how they acquire, manage, and convert customers,” said Edmond Pain, President and Chief Executive Officer of Connecting The Dots. “This expansion reflects our commitment to evolving alongside their needs. By integrating AI technology, strengthening compliance measures, and providing scalable staffing solutions, we are delivering a higher standard of performance marketing that prioritizes both growth and accountability.”

In an era where companies must balance rapid growth with strict regulatory requirements, Connecting The Dots continues to position itself as a partner focused on long-term outcomes. The company's solutions are designed to optimize marketing spend, improve return on investment, and support clients in achieving targeted customer acquisition costs (CPA) without compromising compliance or consumer trust.

"Our mission has always been to create transparent, integrity-based partnerships that drive real business results," Pain added. "As we look to the future, we are investing heavily in innovation and expanding our capabilities to set new benchmarks for the performance marketing industry."

Connecting The Dots' growth trajectory is expected to accelerate over the next five years, supported by ongoing investment in AI technologies, compliance infrastructure, and strategic partnerships across key industry verticals.
