"They help to grow the next generation of leaders in Maryland by empowering those who work for them, those they work with on community boards, and through mentoring. The Daily Record is pleased to recognize these outstanding CEOs."

Camelot Secure in 2022, he has spearheaded pioneering work in Advanced Persistent Threat (APT) Hunting, Attack Surface Management, Penetration Testing, and Threat Detection & Incident Response. Under his leadership, the company has also developed award-winning tools like its AI-driven CMMC compliance solution, Myrddin, which integrates Natural Language Processing and Generative AI to streamline gap assessments.

Beyond technology, Oliver is currently employing 284 veterans and is dedicated to promoting diversity and fostering workforce development. Camelot Secure actively recruits from Historically Black Colleges and Universities, tribal and Hispanic communities, and women-owned organizations.
